Irene Zoupaniotis is a labor and employment attorney representing businesses and organizations across various industries. As both a litigator and proactive counselor, Irene is an important resource to management teams for day-to-day employment issues, offering strategic advice and litigation defense.

As a litigator, Irene manages all aspects of employment litigation, arbitration and mediation. Irene defends wage and hour actions, as well as discrimination, harassment, and retaliation cases. She also counsels clients during government audits and investigations.

Additionally, Irene provides counsel on a wide range of employment issues, including wage and hour compliance, reductions in force, and restrictive covenants. She regularly prepares employee handbooks and personnel policies, negotiates and drafts separation agreements, conducts workplace training for both management and employees on legal compliance issues and conducts independent investigations to mitigate risk and address client concerns. Irene takes a practical, collaborative approach when working with clients, which allows them to reach their goals, mitigate risk and ensure legal compliance.

Prior to joining Farrell Fritz, Irene was a litigation associate at a New York City law firm. Irene is fluent in Greek.
