Stephen Melore is a transactional lawyer with a broad-based corporate practice principally focused on the Middle Market. Steve represents businesses, lenders, and investors in mergers, acquisitions, divestitures, spinoffs, and recapitalizations, including platform, bolt-on and carve out transactions and rollover equity investments. Steve counsels middle market businesses across numerous industries from formation through exit.

Steve also represents owners of closely held businesses in negotiating shareholder and operating agreements, effectuating partner buyouts and redemptions, and drafting and reviewing commercial contracts, including distribution, joint venture, marketing and supply agreements. Steve effectively serves as outside general counsel to many clients.

Steve has extensive experience in resolving business disputes, including effectuating squeeze-out mergers of minority equity holders, and negotiating settlement agreements among business owners in both litigated and non-litigated disputes.
